The 1915

OTTAWAN

OTTAWA-KANSAS

THIS VOLUME OF THE 1915 OTTAWAN

Is reverently dedicated by the Class of 1915 to the

FAMOUS OTTAWA SPIRIT

The O. U. Spirit is that enthusiasm which comes from the gridiron, from the class room, from contest in debate, in oratory and from the many happy associations which cluster round college days, causing the student to rejoice in the triumphs of his school, in the field and forum, and in the achievements of the old grads in every walk of life; it is that indefinable something which grips his very soul and makes him glory in the history of Ottawa University; in her splendid present, and in her future of greater and nobler service,

A student body which can support a losing football team, a basket ball schedule that has the balance on the wrong side of the sheet, an annual that was depending entirely on the student body for its publication, and at the same time push a new gymnasium, has developed the highest type of the Ottawa Spirit.

Some of the Crises in the History of Ottawa University

From 1862 to 1873 the affairs of Ottawa University were unsettled and constantly changing. Starting out with great expectations in the year 1867, the management became so involved that they appealed to the American Baptist Home Mission Society for help. Mr. Robert Atkinson was sent to look into the situation, and through his dogged persistence and unyielding firmness the building and 640 acres of land were saved to the institution at Ottawa.

On January 9, 1875, the building now known as Science Hall was burned and carried no insurance. Under the leadership of Mr. Atkinson the necessary funds were raised, mostly in Ottawa, and the building was restored. School work was resumed in the building in 1876, with Mr. P. L. Williams as President.

After having had the general management of the institution for fifteen years, Mr. Atkinson deciding that he could better serve the institution by a change of work, resigned, with three other trustees. Immediate action was taken to supply the vacancies, and to provide for the continuation of the school. In 1884 Dr. M. L. Ward took the destiny of the school under his guiding hand and through his keen business sense and his good judgement in the trying times of a crisis, Ottawa University is today on a substantial basis.

About five o'clock on the morning of the opening of the collegiate year in 1902, the new college building was discovered to be on fire. The library, laboratory apparatus, the instruments of the orchestra, and the college records were all consumed. The executive committee and part of the faculty were called together at seven o'clock. Prompt action was taken, and the opening exercises were held on time. The loyalty of the students was remarkable, and through the whole year, amid discomfort and inconvenience, the best of work was done.

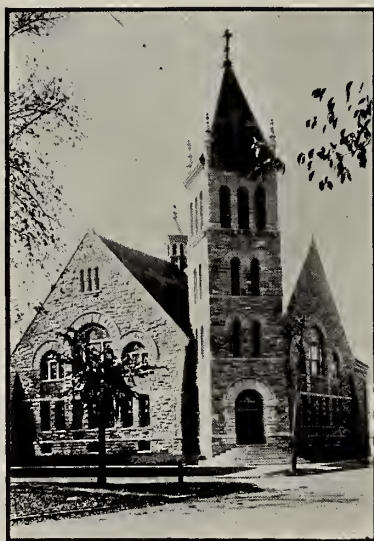

The present administration building was constructed as soon as possible by the help of the loyal Baptists of Kansas and local citizens; but now after a dozen years of rapid growth and development since the fire, that cramped feeling that comes from lack of room and equipment is again felt. In answer to this need for expansion the new gymnasium will soon take the place of the old frame, while tentative plans have been drawn for a new Science Hall and other important improvements which the steady and extensive growth of the school has justified.

*For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.*

The Seniors leave behind them a clean record for their extensive activity in all phases of college life; but they have been especially noted for their daring ability to plunge into new problems that needed their support. In fact, they have made a large contribution to the Ottawa Spirit itself by this plunging habit, and as a result they have made it possible for the entire student body to plunge into the new swimming pool and get in the swim. We hope they plunge into the world with as much vim.

JAMES STEWART,

The ideal student at last.

The tribe of 1915 first realized that they were to become a power on the educational reservation at Ottawa when they found themselves holding down the mighty Sophs on the battle field lit by the silvery moon reflecting ghostly shadows from the tombstones across the way. The contented grunts of the self-invited spectators disposing of choice pieces of unfortunate fowl told of the first clean-up for the new tribe.

With this victory as a starter others came easily. Football and basketball scalps were added to the expanding belt until the old tribal spirit became so strong that the chief called a peace-pipe council and blanket dance to be held on the reservation May 1st. At this council it was suggested that for the next two hunting seasons the tribe might set a higher standard for the development of the better self as well as the better half.

As a result the 1915 Ottawan replaced the old time sheets of bark, and the blankets were discarded for more dignified, more uncomfortable stiff bosom shirts. Now it would seem that this tribe would be content with having cleaned up everything from chickens to dress suits, but the true Indian instinct which is still found in the tribe points a way to clean up the whole reservation.

So when the new gym appears, shower baths will be installed and this famous tribe will eventually clean up everything and everybody that can be coaxed under the delightful spray.

OPAL HENDERSON.

The Department of Expression in Ottawa University has always been considered as one of the most popular schools of fine art in the state, and, although at the present time the enrollment in this department is not as large as it has been in the past, yet the quality and thoroughness of the work is up to the high standard which is characteristic of this course.

Miss Alice Dean Spalding, who has had this department in charge for two years, has made the courses as practical as possible, so that the individual student may more fully understand and appreciate his ability and possibilities, although he does not intend to complete the two-year course.

Special attention is given to the classes in platform art, interpretation, public speaking, and to the study of the classics. The Freshman declamations, the Orators, and Debaters all receive their training in delivery from the department, and the class plays are given under its direction.

Oratory

JAMES FISHER.

WALTER MARTIN.

Among the many other things which Ottawa has supported in times of both victory and defeat, is the interest in Oratory. The school has always held an enviable position in the intercollegiate contests, and the silver-tongued Orators of recent years have retained the high standard which was established several years ago when the institution was first recognized as a coming power in the field.

The Ottawa Spirit for which the College has become famous has in the past shown more favoritism to this particular form of enthusiasm, than to some of the other activities, and the state contest held in Ottawa this year had its full share of that worthy enthusiasm generator. It was not the same type of wild untamed spirits that were uncorked here when K. U. brought her Spirit along, but it was that trained power that helped Fisher at the right time, enabling him to win second place.

The Contests entered for the season are: State Oratorical Contest, held at Ottawa, March 13.

"Our Backward Peoples," James Fisher. Ranking: Second Place.

Peace Contest, held at Topeka, April 17.

"The Task of Our Century," Harold Husted.

State Prohibition Contest, held at Wichita, April 11.

"The Battle for Principle," Walter Martin.

Debate

PROF. CHARLES O. HARDY.
Debate Coach.

The history of debate in Ottawa University has been somewhat peculiar. Beginning with four straight victories in the years from 1898 to 1900, there followed an eclipse of eight years, during which period six successive debates were lost and a period of four years elapsed without a team in the field. Since 1908, however, with better organization of student enterprise and more support from the faculty, Ottawa has been coming rapidly to the front in this field, the record for the last five years being ten to five in our favor. The organization of debating courses in the English Department, the offer of substantial prizes by two Ottawa business men for excellence in debate, and the loyal support of the student body have all contributed to this result.

But the greatest incentive to debate activity has been the hard work, and never-ceasing enthusiasm of Charles O. Hardy, who has been coaching the debate teams since Ottawa has been recognized as a debate center. Professor Hardy is a member of the class of 1904 and has taken an active part in debate and literary work ever since he has been connected with the University. Ottawa owes her high ranking in debate activities at the present time to the time and work which Professor Hardy has put into this department.

The remarkable season of 1912-13, which resulted in six out of a possible seven victories for the college and academy teams, has given an added stimulus to the work this year. In spite of the loss of twelve experienced debaters, the heaviest schedule in the history of the institution has been undertaken, comprising five debates for the college and four for the academy, besides the three local debates. The Ottawan goes to press too early to record more than the first two victories, but at the present writing prospects are bright for another successful season. The schedule follows:

COACH, PORTER CRAIG.

With only a small squad of light and largely inexperienced men, Coach Craig built up a team of which we are truly proud. Facing a schedule that they could not possibly win, our boys fought it out to the end, and showed every opposing team that we are always game losers.

JESSE TANNER, Captain.

Our hard-fighting captain; our best example of a good, clean athlete.

HARVEY BERKEY.

A valuable man in the line; mocks discouragement and puts new hope into his teammates. Always fighting desperately and well.

HAROLD GENTRY.

Around whom all plays were built. He was the team's last straw, and a kicker that "kicked" for good. His punting was a bright light in O. U.'s season.

GLENWOOD FLINT.

A valuable man because of his willingness, his speed, and his ability to play at either halfback position. He will be indispensable to the team in 1914.

OTTAWAN

WARD MILES.

A hard, earnest worker, quick to learn, and improved with each game. He became an excellent defensive player. We are sorry to see him leave us this year.

HERBERT CHRISTENSEN.

A steady, willing, hard-working halfback, whose plucky playing will be sadly missed next year.

FRANK SMITH.

A consistent player; quick to solve the opponents' play; not found loafing on the job.

MYRON KING.

A hard-tackling, diminutive end, who had the misfortune of being played at quarter. He is a heady player and gives promise of becoming a valuable man.

OMER WEST.

A star player, who developed as such in a season because of his ability to swallow rebuke and absorb the lesson. He will be a strong man on next year's squad.

RALPH KILLOUGH.

Regardless of his lack of size, he can punch large holes in the best of lines, and is "fight" from whistle to whistle.

OTTAWAN

ALBIN JOHNSON.

An old star who showed his loyalty to the team by playing in the Baker game, not having played the entire season.

VICTOR HUNT.

Came out at the close of the season in response to the call for more men. His heady playing materially aided the team in their fight against Baker.

CHARLES BANNING.

Another big man who showed the proper spirit by going into the Baker game to support his school.

HERBERT McCLELLAN.

A good example of the loyal spirit that makes
O. U. Fought hard and well for his school.

WILLARD SCOVILLE.

Always ready, and capable of filling well the place he was put into. He fought for O. U. and not for himself.

ERWIN JONES.

The new man on the squad, but one who always did everything that was physically possible. Will be an excellent captain next year.

OTTAWAN

Basket Ball

The Basket Ball season of 1914, has in many respects been an unfortunate one. With three stars from last years' fast team in the game, and the White Diamonds to draw from, the team started the season with bright prospects.

Although most of the scores were on the wrong side of the column, yet the team has been victorious, in its ability to play a clean game and to accept defeat with that dauntless courage, so characteristic of the Ottawa Spirit.

Under the leadership of Captain Harry Jewell who managed the schedule, the season has been a successful one, and Jewell's squad will be remembered by their opponents, as the bunch that meant "fight from whistle to whistle."

The schedule follows:

- Jan. 14. Southwestern at Ottawa, 22-48.
- Jan. 22. Bethany at Ottawa, 29-41.
- Jan. 29. Ottawa at Fairmount, 19-53.
- Jan. 30. Ottawa at Friends, 29-25.
- Jan. 31. Ottawa at Southwestern, 21-35.
- Feb. 6. Friends at Ottawa, 35-30.
- Feb. 16. Fairmount at Ottawa, 39-35.
- Feb. 26. Kansas Wesleyan at Ottawa, 30-28.
- March 5. Ottawa at Bethany, 23-27.
- March 6. Ottawa at Kansas Wesleyan, 27-42.

Many students who take no active part in other athletic contests find tennis and golf pleasant forms of recreation.

The golf links are proving a strong attraction for those who can "club" together; but the tennis courts are used constantly throughout the season.

The game is especially popular with the feminine enthusiasts who have tournaments of their own on their own private courts. Faculty members, as well as students, take an active part in the fall tournaments, but until a better rival appears the big-hearted Swede, Harold Hanson, will continue to hold the upper hand in the "love all" game.

In the last few years every college of any prominence has organized a Student Council which transacts all the business pertaining to the student body at large, thus making the students themselves entirely responsible for the government of the school.

The clear-cut stand which Ottawa University has taken in all activities in which the physical, mental, moral or financial side of the school is involved, is due to the fact that the students themselves set this high standard through their representatives in the council.

The Campus is one of the oldest College publications in the state and has done more for the upbuilding of the school than any other one enterprise.

The literary standards of the institution have been represented in the Campus for many years, but it has also served the practical purpose of telling the outside world just what Ottawa University is and means to her students.

The Campus has been directly responsible for fanning the famous Ottawa Spirit into a red heat at the proper time, for the maintenance of the advertising and publicity bureau, and for a workshop which has turned out some of the best newspaper men in the country.

At the present time the Campus means more to Ottawa than it ever has before, and its success as a student enterprise is due to the superior knowledge of the profession and preserving hard work on the part of the management.

OTTAWAN

One of the characteristic features of Ottawa University is the moral fibre of the student body both individually and collectively. That something that calls forth the best there is in a student in the class room and on the athletic field is a result of the desire for a clean life that is upheld by the combined forces of the Christian associations.

Through the influence of these associations the college life is far above the average university standard, and Ottawa has a reputation for her clean record in all inter-collegiate activities.

Both associations have always had a large delegation at the respective conventions held each year, and the enthusiasm of the delegates for Christian work has increased materially from year to year.

Ottawa was especially fortunate this year in having the great international convention, which meets only once in four years, so near at hand. A large number of students grasped the opportunity to hear the world leaders in Christian work, and as a result the influence from this wonderful meeting has been felt not only by the entire student body, but by the citizens of Ottawa as well.

The two weeks' series of meetings that are held annually have never had more effect on the student body than those held this winter, and their success was traced largely to the previous preparation of the Christian associations and to the everlasting inspiration the delegates received at the Kansas City convention.

Ottawa is proud of the Christian influence and high ideals of her students, and when an entire graduating class can say that their total membership are Christians, it is apparent that the spiritual development of the school is not lacking.

The success of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. depends on strong leadership and willing workers; but one of the secrets of success is the development of the social side with the spiritual. Each individual student may receive any kind of help he desires, as it is the purpose of the respective associations to offer any assistance possible that will make the path easier and that will assist in leading the student to Christ.

The Ministerial Association is an organization of the men in college who are preparing themselves for ministerial work. As a help in their work they hold weekly meetings, at which some member delivers a sermon, or occasionally some minister from the town leads a discussion on some helpful topic. All of the men are engaged in some form of religious work, and a large number of them have regular charges. Under the leadership of Dan R. Gott, the organization has been unusually successful this year.

Special selections which are highly appreciated by the student body are given each Saturday morning in chapel, and concerts are held at regular intervals for the benefit of the town people.

Miss Opal Henderson has made a place with her audiences as a reader of rare ability in her selections of child nature, and makes a valuable addition to the company.

Mr. Edward Kroesch is the vocal soloist, and although this is his first season, he has made good with his audiences.

Miss Pearl Stannard, a Senior in the Conservatory, is an able accompanist for the high class entertainments which the company present. She does her solo work with equally splendid ability.

Mr. Kroesch, who was with the Quartet last year, is second tenor, while Mr. Chauncy Gibson, an Academy man, is making good as first tenor.

THE OTTAWA ORATORIO SOCIETY.

Prof. J. W. Bixel organized a society for the students who appreciate really good music and wished to make an extensive study of some of the better known choruses. The Oratorio has increased its study in the last few years, under the efficient instruction of Professor Bixel, until some of the most difficult choruses are now presented.

This spring Judas Maccabaeus was rendered in the Baptist Church before a large and appreciative audience. The study of "Spohr's Last Judgment" will be taken up and presented during commencement week.

WOMAN'S CIVIC ASSOCIATION.

Is an organization for the public-spirited girls of the College who desire to know something of the civic, political and moral questions of the day. The feature in this year's programs has been the valuable training in parliamentary law.

The Association, under the leadership of Blanche Althouse and Maude Andrews, has been an acknowledged benefit to all who attend.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER BAND.

The study of foreign missions and the many calls which have been received for assistance have stimulated the interest in this phase of applied Christianity in the last few months. In addition to the Volunteer Band it has been necessary to organize several new gospel teams to meet the demand for the many calls which are received continually for these men.

PROHIBITION LEAGUE.

Is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the School. It is a branch of the national association, and the annual prohibition oratorical contests are held under the auspices of this League. Ottawa has a high standard in all of these contests, and will make a creditable showing this year.

OTTAWAN

When the spring days cometh and the student reciteth not, neither does he study, then is he glad that King Silas has decreed that there shall be two days of grace, namely, a May Day and a Charter Day.

Last it was decreed that the day of May and gladness should consist of ceremonies to celebrate the crowning of the May Queen, and that each class should be prepared with a stunt to commemorate the formal opening of spring.

But another decree also came from the Royal Council which caused all the subjects thereof to wonder and clap their hands with joy. A holiday was declared to celebrate the work of our faithful fathers who established the institution and procured for our University a charter.

So it came to pass that in the month of April, on the twenty-first day, the entire student body assembled on the campus; but baskets of lunch and plans for a picnic replaced books and lessons, and the crowd journeyed in wagons, cars and carts to the Indian burying ground of historic interest.

Speeches, ball games, sports and couples amused the company after the grounds and the dinner table had been cleared of all debris, and all rejoiced and were exceeding glad.

From now on, henceforth and forever more, let us hope that it will come to pass that when there is spring fever it will be spring, where there be lessons assigned they shall be forgotten, where there be flunks they shall be done away, and those who now act as faculty shall act as students, and the whole assembly shall hike to the woods for a Charter Day together.

Napoleon was small—but look what he accomplished. The 1915 OTTAWAN—

"Yes, I suppose it is all for the best," sighed the Old Gym. "Yet I have been here so long, and have witnessed so many victories and defeats, parties and receptions, that I cannot help but feel badly because I have to leave."

"You have been faithful," quoth the New Gym, as he flicked a speck of dirt from his new stone front, "and we won't forget you. You've been roasted, 'tis true, but deep down in the hearts of the students and alumni there is a large, warm spot for you; and, old boy, I'll try to keep up the standard you have established in always standing for fair play and honorable competition. Why, you look faint."

"I'm getting weak," whispered the Old Gym; "I'm afraid I—can't—last much—longer."

"Courage, brother; don't give up; you—Ah! I fear he is dying. Speak, speak to me. Ah, he mutters. Listen."

"Beat—Baker—or—Bust——"

OTTAWAN

"I'm afraid my time is coming," said the Old Bleachers, despondently. "If the Old Gym goes, I'll probably be next. The age of improvements is hard on us old fellows, but we've been a power in our day. Many a game of football and baseball have I witnessed. And many a pair of blissful young lovers have I held on my top row."

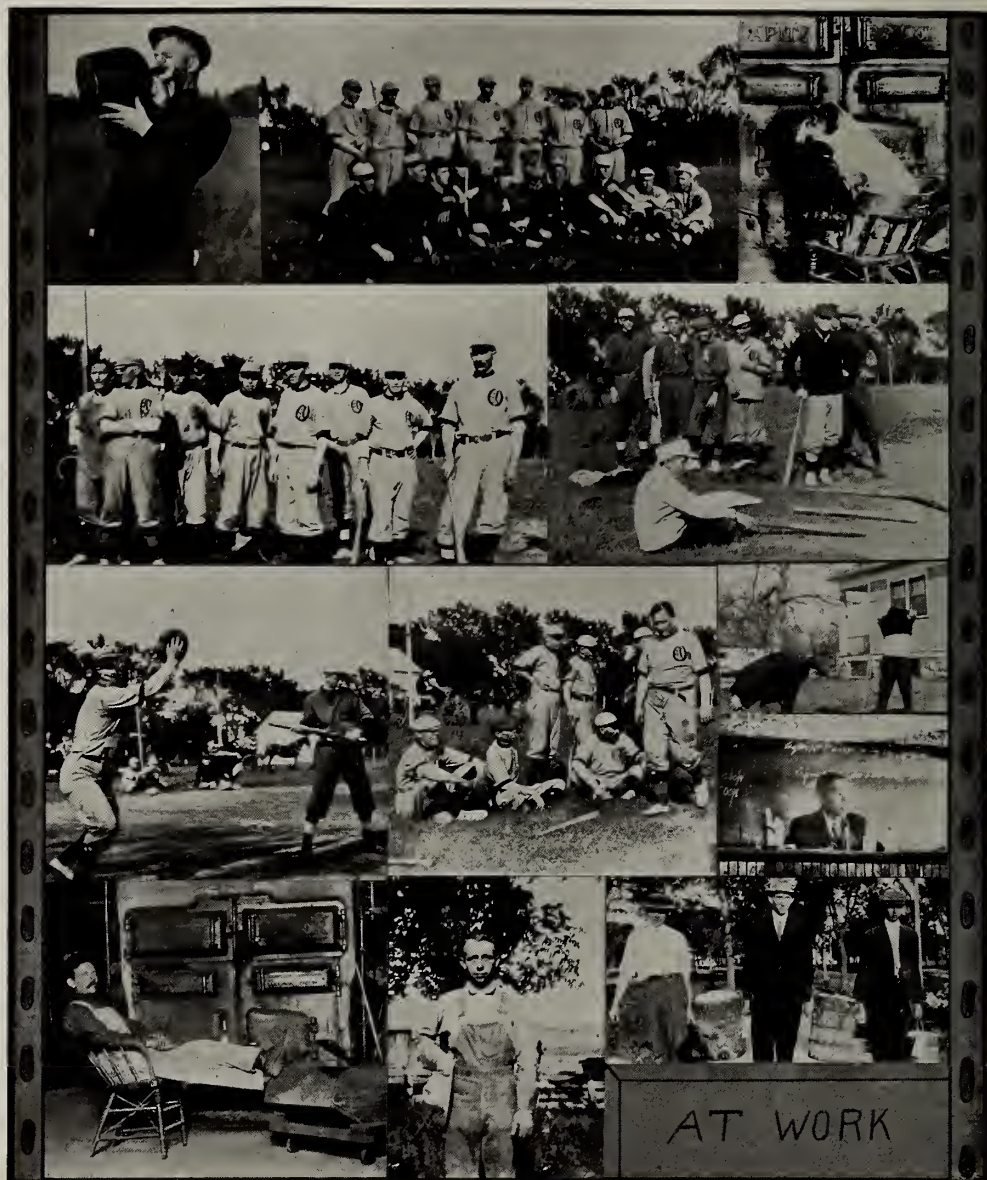

OTTAWAN

"Where would Hulda and Zim have been if it wasn't for me? or Les and Margaret? or Brad and Ethel? or, in fact, any member of the present Senior class? To say nothing of the Senior classes of the past. I am confident that I am dearer to Hal Crain than any other feature of the College."

OTTAWAN

*"My open season is approaching, but the prospect of elm worms fills me with dire misgivings, and I fear I shall not be as popular as of yore;
But I should worry, they should die,
I should get a girl for another guy."*

What Would Have Happened If—

Only married men would hold office.
Dandelions would flourish on the golf links.
Band would receive heavy support. (Harlan has a clarinet.)
Teddy would have been city treasurer.
Fisher had received first place?
Brandy had not restored the heart of House when it turned to Flint?
Dick Keene had not saved Science Hall from fire?
Slayter Balyeat had not met any Freshmen?
Albin Johnson had not gone to the editors' convention?
The Ottawa Spirit should have failed at the contest?
The loyal student body had not supported the ANNUAL?
Ray Brewster had never had a date?
The Acs had not been so enthusiastic for a holiday?
The Class of 1913 had not started the gym fund?
All the Physics class had flunked?
You had failed to get your 1915 OTTAWAN?

Did You Ever Stop to Think That:

Love may laugh at locksmiths, but when he finds himself in the presence of Aunt Maggie with her little bell the combination is too much for him?

A little college now and then will graduate the wisest men?

When a college youth presents a bunch of flowers to his girl, she never thinks of thanking his father for paying for them?

Love and porous plaster, son, are very much alike?

It's simple getting into one, but getting out—goodnight.

To win a maid you need a heart full of love and prove it; you need a head full of sense and show it; you need a purse full of coin and BLOW it?

It is hard to find a better school with better students and faculty in a better town than Ottawa?

The later you go to bed, the sooner you can get up?

The more you know, the more you are expected to know?

When a fool has made up his mind, the market has gone by?

If you speak to the same girl twice in one day they will say you have a case?

When you study for a quiz, you forget it all?

When you don't, you flunk?

When you recite every day, you have to stall?

When you don't, you're punk?

Your college course is the most important course you will take and that it will be what you make it?

Most people, like Orators, are successful, not because they are good, but because they are good enough?

If you know all these things your college course has been worth while.

The Charge of the Ottawa Spirit.

Baker to right of them,
Baker to left of them,
Baker in front of them,
Punting and fumbling.
Cheered with shout and yell
Nobly they gained and even
Into the mud they fell,
On to the goal pell mell
Plunged our Eleven.

Campaigns to right of them,
Campaigns to left of them,
Campaigns in front of them,
Canvassed the three hundred.
With Victory to deserve it,
With Pledges to start it,
With Cash to build it,
Rises up the new Gym;
Now let's cheer and push with vim
For the loyal three hundred.

When can her glory fade
After fifty years of history made
Since the birth of the lively Sprite?
Praise the work it has done,
Boost for the good will that will come
From the famous Ottawa Spirit.

Success

(Written expressly for the 1915 Ottawan by George Matthew Adams, '01.)

Success is just ordinary failure—turned backwards.

Success is a positive piece of business. There is nothing negative to it.

Success is not a thing loaned or borrowed, or handed down, or copied. Success is something earned, something found—something grasped.

Also success is something that you are, and have, that nobody else is or has. Success is finding yourself—genuinely. For when you have found yourself, you have found your life work, which thereafter is but the interpreting of what you are and have, set toward a noble viewpoint, and then translated into deeds and achievements.

The first process in success is to do your work in the best way you know how. And the next process ever after is to follow up your work with something better.

What O. U. Has Meant to Frank J. White, '98, Head of Baptist College, Shanghai, China.

My life has not been very different from that of every young man who goes out from college, and I could not have accomplished much if I had not had two things which I learned at Ottawa and which I believe can be learned as well at Ottawa as any college I know. One of these is the power of leadership, initiative, management or whatever term you may choose, which may be learned in a smaller college, where one is not submerged into a great mass of students.

The other characteristic is that of patience to make the most of one's opportunities with the appliances at hand, which one can learn better in an institution where not every known want is furnished at your elbow.

O. U. Spirit recalls the old days on the campus and their pleasing associations; the lessons learned from books and long since forgotten, and the lessons from life that are unforgettable; the ideals emphasized and the broad vision of life that sent students forth to strive for those ideals.

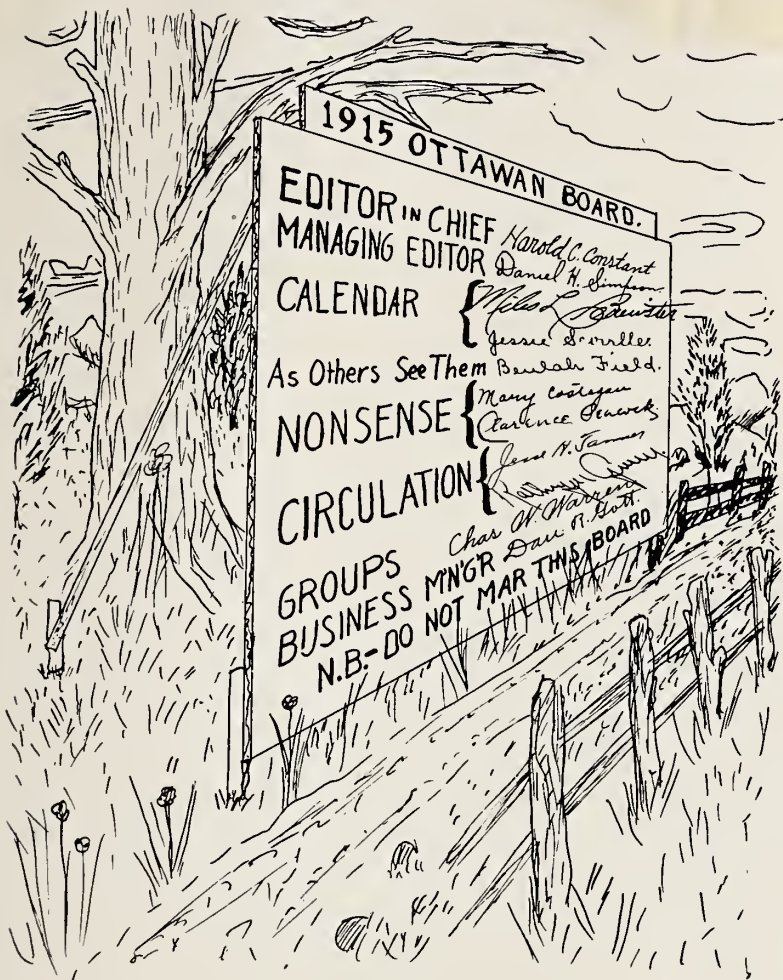

The Spirit of the Alma Mater is like to the spirit of the old home and the memories it conjures up give the deepest sincerity to the wish of the college song:

"May thousands to thee flow
And thousands from thee go
To heal earth's sin and woe,
My Ottawa."

Editor of the Salina Journal.

The Alumni page is a new feature of the Ottawan, and from the interest taken by those who contributed, and from the genuine worth of the articles, we are more than glad that this space has been given over to a few of the O. U. men who have been out of school long enough to appreciate the true value of a college course at Ottawa University.

We wish to express our appreciation of the interest and support of these, as well as all others of the Alumni who haven't been out of school long enough to lose that heart-felt enthusiasm for all worthy college activities, and who have had a large part in making Ottawa University an institution of the highest type for the development of real character.

OTTAWAN

A Card of Appreciation.

The 1915 Ottawan is an annual that is different from anything else that has been published and the business methods of the management have not only been new, but they have also been successful.

We believe that the size and quality of the 1915 Ottawan make it a book that is really in keeping with the size and standard of the School and the Class of 1915, as a result of the success of the enterprise, would like nothing better than to see the 1915 Ottawan adopted as a standard for future publications.

The 1915 Ottawan could not have been published this year if the entire student body had not pledged their support and co-operation to the enterprise. This book belongs strictly to the student body, and the Juniors take this opportunity to thank them individually and collectively for their interest and support in raising money for the publication. We are especially proud of the Academy in their enthusiasm for the Annual and for the enthusiastic response they made to our enterprise.

This book has been published by the Staff and the willing members of the Junior class and not by the Editors alone. But the artistic effect of the book is due exclusively to the able and experienced talent which worked on the book.

The designing was done by Mr. Luke Hoffman who has had experience on several annuals, and who will be recognized before long as the artistic Annual designer from Kansas.

Mr. Porter Craig, a pen and ink artist of rare ability, drew the page headers which are far above those found in the larger books.

Mr. Harry Johnson, a local photographer, who is also fortunate in being a professional cartoonist, made the calendar cuts which will give him a satisfactory introduction to the students.

All the portraits were made at the Bauman studio which has had experience on many annuals, enabling them to make cuts for any book of quality.

The class of write-ups is due to the cooperation of the interested Alumni.

OTTAWAN

Ottawa University and the Business Men.

For many years the University has depended upon the substantial support which the local business men have given so willingly and unhesitatingly, to all forms of college activities. In fact the school could not exist without the support of the merchants, and they in turn would surely miss the warm feeling of friendship and substantial patronage which exists between the school and the business district.

The management of the 1915 Ottawan came to the conclusion that the advertisers in former annuals had been expected to contribute to a proposition in which the actual returns in dollars and cents was unevenly divided as far as the merchant was concerned, and although the annuals of the past have never made any money, yet the business which would receive no actual benefit from an ad was expected to pay as much as the other fellow.

Owing to the fact that the gymnasium fund was started this year, the annual management felt that the merchants would not be able to handle an annual under the old system of advertising, and the size of the book was cut down and improved until it was really representative of the school, and is a publication that will have a large and popular sale.

In the meantime the Retail Merchants Association has been organized, but it was thought best not to present the matter to the organization until they were in shape to consider the matter on a new basis, and the 1915 Ottawan has been published without any advertising.

But we feel that in a way we have benefited both the merchants as well as the school by placing the Annual on a business basis and we are sure that the business men are behind us in our effort to place the enterprise on a substantial foundation that will help the Merchant, the school and the town.

We wish to thank the members of the Retail Merchants' Association for their interest and support in all student activities, and to congratulate them on the excellent organization they are perfecting, which will strengthen the bonds that unite the merchants and the College as one boosting factor for the city of Ottawa.
